

The Margaret Eaton School of Literature and Expression

Toronto

Afternoon Tea

Lamps, lamps, endless lamps Candles, and shadows between People and clocks the murmur of talk.

Blue smoke and laughter serene

Over it all, against the half lighted
The shadows of people who dance To music, that cries, that laughs and that sighs

Color? is color romance?

Are we awake dear?

Its shadowing night—

Get out in the world its broad daylight

Are we asleep? Does it only seem

That we've stepped into somebody else's dream

You lean over the table and laugh at me

This! and they call this just a ^{pleasure} vision

Volets.

Purple Volets - That is all

Willed? Yes but O so sweet

Almost I feel the Spring rain fall

Willed Volets - That is all.

Ah but Love is bitter - sweet -

Volets in the world's gray rain

Where the mist kissed shadows ^{met}

There the Volets - live again.

The blossoms and the spring are fled

And yet here in the dusk rain wet -

I scent the fragrance that they shed

Although the violet days be dead

I know again the light of your Ashen in eyes of Heaven blue So full of happy dreams they were Turn vivid violets wet with dew.
